ÉLIZABETH CÔTÉ-BOILEAU

Élizabéth Côté-Boileau is a fourth year PhD Candidate in Health Sciences Research at University of Sherbrooke (Quebec). She is also a doctoral fellow of the Fonds de recherche du Québec - Santé. Her main research interests regard the governance and capacity building dynamics' of large-scale health system transformations, with a particular focus on performance and innovation management. Her thesis focuses on integrated performance management systems' and behaviors towards value-based public health care systems. Alongside her research training, Élizabéth cumulates various experiences as a consultant for non-profit pan Canadian organizations, such as the Canadian Foundation for Healthcare Improvement (2016-2018), and Health Standards Organization (2019-today). Élizabéth has been a member of the CAHSPR Student Working Group (SWG) for the past four years (2016-today). As co-chair of the SWG since 2018, she is happy to represent the pan Canadian trainee community in health services and policy research, as a member of the board of directors of CAHSPR. She is also one of the co-founder of the Early Career Hub - The Society for Organizational Studies in Healthcare (SHOC), and an active member of the Hub-health: politics, organizations and law (H-POD) - University of Montreal.
