MERICHELLE LECLAIR

Marichelle Leclair is a doctoral candidate in psychology at the Université de Montréal holds a master's degree in epidemiology from the School of Population and Global Health at McGill University. Her research, funded by a Vanier scholarship from the Canadian Institutes of Health Research and conducted at the Institut national de psychiatrie légale Philippe-Pinel, aims to improve the organization of mental health care and services received by people who are involved with the criminal justice system. Her multidisciplinary roots allow her to adopt psychosocial, systemic and organizational perspectives to approach issues related to the capacity of health services to respond to the complex needs of fragilized populations in accessing adequate and evidence-based services.
